

Women in Amaro

“During our school presentations with Sanna, we highlighted the diverse career opportunities available within the rail industry and provided students with an overview of a typical day in our roles, including our responsibilities on track. We emphasised that the railway offers equal opportunities for both females and males, encouraging young women to consider careers in this field. We also discussed our initiative, Women in Amaro (WiA), which seeks to promote greater gender diversity in the railway, which remains a predominantly male-dominated industry, and our commitment to fostering a more inclusive environment. Additionally, I shared my personal journey into the rail industry, detailing my educational background, including Level 2 and Level 3 qualifications in Electrical installations, which paved the way for my present career at Amaro.”

Laura Howes, Apprentice

